Turin, April 24.

ON Monday the 8th Inſtant the French Ambaſſador here made his Publick Entry. He went from his own Houſe to Court, attended by the Marſhal de la Roque and the Maſter of the Ceremonies, and was introduced to his Sardinian Majeſty and the Royal Family; on his Return, he was conducted to a Houſe provided for him by his Sardinian Majeſty, where he was entertained for three Days at the Expence of the Court, and had a Table at Dinner and Supper of Forty-ſix Covers. The ſame Evening there was a grand Opera at the Theatre, which was ſuperbly illuminated. On Wedneſday the 10th, his Excellency made a Demand in Form of the Princeſs in Marriage with the Comte de Provence, in the Name of the King his Maſter; and in the Evening there was a Drawing-Room at Court. On Saturday the 13th his Excellency, having removed to a Houſe on the Place St. Charles, which he had taken for the Occaſion, gave a grand Maſked Ball and Supper to all the Nobility; at which the Duke of Savoy, the Prince of Piedmont, and the Princes of the Blood were preſent. On Monday the 15th, the Contract of Marriage was ſigned; and there was a grand Ball at the Prince of Carignan's in the Evening. On Wedneſday the 17th, his Excellency gave a grand Ball and Supper to the Nobility and Gentry. There were Three Tables of Two Hundred Covers each. On Thurſday the 18th, there was a magnificent Ball at Court; and, on Friday, a Drawing-Room and Concert. On Sunday the Marriage Ceremony was performed; the Prince of Piedmont being Proxy for the Comte de Provence. In the Evening a grand Firework was exhibited in the Place of St. Charles; after which, the Ambaſſador's Houſe, a Temple in the Middle of the Square, and Four Chineſe Moſques at the Corners, built on the Occaſion, were illuminated, and had a very noble Effect. The Concourſe of People to ſee the Fireworks and Illuminations, was very great; notwithſtanding which, through the Precautions taken by the Governor, not the leaſt Diſturbance happened. After this there was a Ball at the Ambaſſador's Houſe for the whole Town, which laſted all Night.

On Monday Morning, about Ten, the Princeſs departed from this Place: She went in a Coach with the King of Sardinia and the Duke and Dutcheſs of Savoy, and was followed by the Prince of Piedmont and the Duke of Chablais in another, attended by 435 Perſons in Coaches and on Horſeback, and eſcorted by a Troop of Horſe Grenadiers. At Rivoli the King of Sardinia, the Duke of Chablais, and the Prince of Piedmont, took their Leave of the Princeſs, and returned to Turin. Their Parting was very affecting, and moved all the Spectators. The Duke and Dutcheſs of Savoy accompanied her to Aviglian, where the Princeſs was to reſt on Monday Night. The Comte de la Marmora has Orders to meet the Princeſs at Chamberry, and attend her to Pont Beauvoiſin, where ſhe will be received by the Perſons appointed for that Purpoſe by his moſt Chriſtian Majeſty, and conducted to Verſailles.

Vienna, April 24. On Saturday laſt her Imperial Majeſty removed to Schonbrun for the Summer Seaſon. The Emperor does not go to ſtay there till the Beginning of next Week.

Berlin, April 27. On the 22d of this Month the King of Sweden, accompanied by his Brother Prince Frederick Adolphus, arrived at Potzdam from Brunſwick: Laſt Thurſday they came to this Capital, and were immediately received by the Queen of Pruſſia and the Royal Family. In the Evening there was a grand Concert of Muſick, and afterwards a moſt ſplendid Supper in her Pruſſian Majeſty's Apartments in the Palace.

Yeſterday his Pruſſian Majeſty arrived from Potzdam, with an Intention of exerciſing, in the Preſence of the King of Sweden, the Troops of this Garriſon in the Plain of Tempelhoff near this City; but the Orders given for that Purpoſe were countermanded on Account of the Badneſs of the Weather.

Copenhagen, April 27. On Wedneſday laſt died, at his Houſe at Turby Holm, a few Leagues from this City, the Grand Marſhal Count Moltke, eldeſt Son of the Miniſter of that Name.

Hague, May 3. The Electreſs Palatine arrived here, under the Name of Counteſs of Neſſelrodt, on Wedneſday Afternoon; took a View of the Town, lodged at the Palatine Miniſter's, and ſet off for Utrecht the next Morning, on her Return to Duſſeldorp. Her Electoral Highneſs received a Viſit from the Prince of Orange, but declined any other Viſits.

And whereas on Wedneſday the 24th Inſtant, the Letter, of which the following is a Copy, was received by the Poſt by the ſaid David Wilmot, Eſq;

M[r] Wilmot April the 21: 1771

The letter you rec[d] from me was a friendly warning to You to deſiſt from any farther Concern in proſecuting ſome unhappy Perſons who had taken that juſt revenge which the Law would not admit of. If you pretend that the Cruelty of the Act urged You to ſuch a Meaſure what muſt You now think of Yourſelf who are endeavouring to take the Lives of ſeveral Perſons who never did You any Injury, but who had received in their deareſt Friends, & were likely to receive in their own Perſons the moſt fatal Conſequences (from a raſh Step long ſince Committed and of which they repented) By that deteſtable late Object of their revenge who was thirſting after their Blood not thro' any motive of Juſtice but mearly for Reward. This you know to be a true ſtate of the Caſe, and yet you under the Cloak of humanity, are purſuing with the greateſt Barbarity without having received the leaſt prejudice thoſe Perſons whom you cannot but Allow had ſome eſſential Reaſons for their proceedings: But know this Buſy Villain that tis not the greateſt Reward in the Kings gift, that ſhall either be the means of Detecting or Deterring the writer of theſe Letters and his Aſſociates in this Affair, from purſuing with inſatiable & heart felt Revenge, their Deſigns againſt You ſhould any one Perſon ſuffer from your buſy Concern. & know farther that having ſuch connections at all your haunts, and free Acceſs at moſt Time to your Perſon, 'tis not the whole third Regiment of Guards that can protect You from the well concerted Plan for your Deſtruction. Therefore be wiſe if You Value your own Preſervation and uſe your utmoſt endeavours to put an End to rather than promote this Proſecution, as we are now ſatisfied having put an End to the exiſtence of that Monſter in human Shape, the fear of whom kept ſeveral famillies in a ſtarving Condition by keeping from them their principal Support thro the Apprehenſion of being Informed againſt. But if you diſpiſe this advice and will perſiſt in Your Cruel Deſign of farther depriving many poor famillies of their immediate Support (whoſe only Crime was ſelf preſervation the firſt Law of nature) Hear this! That in the Face of the almighty in the moſt Solemn Manner we do now Vow and Declare, that your Blood ſhall pay for this Savage temerity was the Danger in the Attempt ever ſo great, which on the Contrary is far from being ſo from our truſty Connections & well Diſpoſd plan

PS. you may now apply to the King for a larger reward and try to what Purpoſe it will be
